Frequently Asked Questions

For answers to any of your PR-related questions, email media@ofcconference.org

How do I share our company's news with OFC?

OFC exhibitors can submit their news releases announcing new products, partnerships or solutions - for FREE. On the top right corner of the homepage, click For Media, then Exhibitor PR Professionals and News Release Submission Form to submit your news release or go directly.

- Note that we only accept releases up to 500 words in length with up to a 100 character headline; please include your OFC booth number.
- Also, be sure to include your social media information as we regularly promote releases via Twitter (@ofcconference).
- Media and analysts are directed to the Exhibitor News section of our site to view the latest announcements.
- OFC partners with PR Newswire/Virtual Press Office for news release distribution and online media kits.

What is the OFC PR Toolkit?

The OFC PR Toolkit is your complete guide to the free promotional opportunities at OFC. The Toolkit is designed to provide exhibitors with the public relations and social media information, opportunities and content they need to maximize their presence at the conference and exhibition. You can download a copy of the Toolkit by visiting the Media Center section of the OFC website and clicking on the OFC Exhibitor PR Toolkit link (or directly here).

How can I get a copy of the OFC Pre-Registered Media and Analyst List?

Exhibitors must complete the Exhibitor PR Contact Form located in the Media Center on the OFC website to receive the pre-registered media and analyst list. By registering their company's PR and/or marketing contact, they will receive the OFC Exhibitor PR email newsletter, which includes a link to download the most recent pre-registered media and analyst list. The list is generally available approximately four weeks before the show and is updated in each newsletter.

What are some tips for reaching the OFC media and analysts?

- Guidelines for Media Kits: We strongly encourage exhibitors to post their media kits and information on their website. Exhibiting companies may provide up to 20 media kits to be displayed in the Media Center. Deadline and room location information will be provided in the Exhibitor PR Newsletter.
- Interview Rooms: Getting in front of the media and analysts that OFC attracts is a significant priority for our exhibitors. We provide exhibitors with a semi-private room for booking one-on-one briefings with media and analysts. However, because this room is so popular, we must stress that it is to be used only for media and analyst interviews, and space is reserved on a first-come, first-served basis.

How can my company contribute a whitepaper or blog?

- White Papers: To submit a white paper, please forward it as a PDF to ofc@wilkinson.associates. White papers will be posted to the Exhibitor White Paper section of the OFC website and also promoted on Twitter and LinkedIn. We will gladly accept white paper submissions leading up to and through the duration of the OFC Conference.
- Guest blog submissions: Promote your company's expertise by contributing to the OFC conference blog. Please contact Leah Wilkinson at ofc@wilkinson.associates for more information and blog entry guidelines. We can work with you to determine an appropriate blog topic—examples include viewpoints on the state of the industry, perspectives on exhibiting, hot topic areas (e.g., 800G, quantum, photonics, co-packaging, data center), etc. The blog is actively promoted to all attendees and prospective attendees and may appear in OFC newsletters. Here are a few examples.

How can we participate with OFC on social media?

- OFC has a very active social media community. We encourage exhibitors to be part of the industry discussion and join the OFC Twitter community at @ofcconference. There you can watch for important OFC news and updates #OFC23. You can also connect with OFC on LinkedIn to read the latest news and trends, post your company news, cross-post your blogs and stay in the know. Don't forget to check out the OFC YouTube channel for videos and content from previous events, as well as previews of hot topics for the current conference.
